Venture-Backed Product Support

Building Blocks Digital is a premier software development firm based in Los Angeles. The company works almost exclusively with venture-backed startups that are in need of product development support. As founders ourselves, we understand the crucial implementation of time and resources. Our goal as your technical partner is to optimize your investment in product development by providing dedicated engineering resources and US based project managers to support internal engineering teams. The model provides for scalable and cost-effective product development without the need for completely internal engineering teams.
